

ADHD Medication Shortage Information

ADHD medication

You might be taking medication to help you think and do your daily tasks.

What is the problem?

The country has run out of some ADHD medications.

Why is this happening?

More people need ADHD medications now. The companies that make them cannot keep up. There is a problem getting this medication to local pharmacies across England.

How long will this problem last?

At least until January 2024.

What should I do?

- Speak to your pharmacist and GP if you are taking ADHD medications.
- Order your medications early. At least 2 weeks before you run out.
- If you have still problems, speak to your specialist team.
- Trust your doctor or pharmacist to give you medication that could be slightly different from the one you are used to.
- Trust your doctor or pharmacist to give you the same dose you usually get but in a different number of tablets or tablets that don't look the same.
